FOR ROBERT OF LA PLAYA

How much stature has the man
who does his work with pride,
and takes the great things
and the small, so well within his stride.
How very rare a gift is this
to stand tall as a man,
and do the work assigned to you
as so few others can.
How proud, inside, you just must be;
how loved your work, and right.
How much respect must be your gain;
how human your insight.
Stand ever tall as this, my friend,
for such a gift is rare.
There are so few of those who give;
too few of those who care.

The Carmel Business Association invites all business people, both members and non-members of the association to a meeting this evening, 8:00-9:00 o'clock, in the Craft Studios, according to Gladys
McCloud, association president,
and Estella Standard, chairman for this evening's social get-together. Coffee and cookies will be served.

City Clerk Lawrence Rose attended the public hearing in Sacramento this morning before the committee on local government to testify in favor of a bill for resportionment of county supervisorial districts.

He went to Sacramento Wednesday to attend the Biennial conference of the Society of Government Accountants, and so long as he was in Sacramento anyway, and the Carmel City Council is so interested in the bill, decided to testify as to the need in this area for more representation in Salinas for the heavily populated Monterey Peninsula. Now the thinly populated rural areas of Monterey County have majority representation on the board of supervisors.

Gregory Millar who conducted the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra from 1955 to 1960 and this season served as assistant to Leonard Bernstein of the New York Philharmonic, has been engaged as conductor and musical director of the Kalamazoo Symphony Orchestra in Michigan.

Miller organized and conducted the San Francisco Little Symphony from 1951 to 1960.

County Supervisors, Monday, at 11:00 o'clock in the morning, will consider a request of Rancho Mar
Monte to change this subdivision, northeast of the city limits of Carmel, from the Monterey school district to the Carmel Unified School District. The change has been approved by the County School Superintendent's office. Malcolm Millard is the attorney representing Rancho Mar Monte owner, Mrs.
Raymond Smith. There are 22 lots still to be developed, probably in 1962.

Rollo Payne, president-elect of the Carmel Rotary Club, and Mrs.
Payne will leave San Francisco

Ken Kraft Will Talk But Won't Say Anything His Collaborator Charges

By RAYLYN PENNEY

Pat Kraft, who is married to Ken Kraft, said it would be a waste of time to interview her husband. He would talk, all right, but he would say absolutely nothing and the upshot of the thing would be that a few months from now a Kraft piece in some book or magazine would tell all about The Day I Was Interviewed by a Newspaper Reporter.

But if the chance were worth taking, here he was now, ready to be interviewed. Then Pat Kraft went off to "finish typing two pages" and Ken Kraft, whose new book The Birds and the Beasts
were there is a spring publication from Doubleday, came in.

In a brisk, no-nonsense way, he tore a bunch of newspaper into narrow strips and used the strips to light a fire in the fireplace.
"Do you know how to light a fire
so that it starts burning right away and doesn't smoke?" he said.
"The secret is, light it from the side. I just learned that a week or so ago and I haven't had a bit of trouble with smoking fires since."

The Birds and the Beasts, a genuinely funny account of the Krafts' many adventures in a world inhabited by animals, makes it clear to readers that a dog is standard equipment in the Kraft household.

Current dog at their Pebble Beach home is Hi-jack, whose photo made the jacket of this latest Kraft book. "We leased this dog along with the house," Mr.
Kraft said enigmatically. "You'd never think he was 16 years old,
would you?"

Hi-jack is truly a lively fellow.
It seems he outlived the former owner of the home now leased by Pat and Ken, and had been packed off to a kennel for the rest of his days. But the writing couple heard about him and decided, "If there's a dog that goes with this house,
we want him."

They reclaimed Hi-jack, showered him with love and tender care. He responded with a touching gratitude and a ravenous appetite.

Citizens Protest Destruction Of Library Garden

A number of Carmelites, especially residents and property owners of many years in the community, are alarmed at the proposal of the library board to the city council last week that the Harrison Memorial Library be enlarged at its present site, which would mean the destruction of the library garden which faces on Ocean Avenue and provides welcome park-like open space.

Commissioners Study 2nd Resident-Owned Apartment Plans

Carmel planning commissioners, yesterday afternoon, studied plans for a second resident-owned apartment development in Carmel. Plans were submitted by Claude Kimball, owner of Travelers Lodge, and his son, Peter S. Kimball.

The ten-unit apartment house
will be located immediately north of Travelers Lodge on three lots fronting on San Carlos Street between Third and Fourth Avenues.
The property was formerly owned by Mrs. Louis Mayer (Dora Hagemeyer.)

Five two-bedroom, two bath units and five one-bedroom, one bath units are shown in the plans
prepared by Architect George Wil-
lox. The buildings will cover 41 percent of the land area. All parking will be under cover, according to Mr. Kimball.

Commissioners will act on the plans at their regular meeting
Wednesday afternoon.

Commissioners will also act on the following sign applications next week: Little Swiss Cafe, the new motel being built by Richard Catlin on the west side of San Carlos between Fourth and Fifth;
Jolly Roger Restaurant; a temporary sign for Lincoln Lane; the remodelled Purity Store; the Texaco service station at San Carlos and Fifth; and the Cole Bin.

The last application, submitted by Robert Cole for a custom crafted cravat shop in Pantiles Court
off Dolores Street below the post

Free Concert Tonight By Sunset And High School Music Groups

A Spring Concert will be given at 8:00 o'clock this evening by the music departments of Sunset School and Carmel High School in the cafeteria at the high school.

The program will begin with the Sunset School Band, directed by Sharon Jones, followed by the Sunset School Girls Chorus, directed by Jack Douglas.

The Carmel High School Choir,
Boys Glee, and Band will be presented under the direction of John Farr, high school music instructor.

Featured attractions of the high school program will be a violin solo by Jerry Bradley, an original composition of Karen Steinkamp sung by the Boys Glee, and a small instrumental combo directed by Carleton Macy.

The public is invited to this culmination of a year's work in the music departments of the Carmel schools. There will be no admission charge.

Interesting is the fact that apparently the destruction of the garden is the issue, and not the question of whether Carmel tax payers should enlarge library facilities to accommodate children of the property owners in subdivisions that surround Carmel, who pay no library tax. Carmel property owners pay a 30 cent library tax and hand over the business license fees, $11,000 worth, which represents about 9 cents more tax, to the library.

The present facilities would be adequate for Carmel's own children. Facilities to continue accommodating the large juvenile population outside the city would require a bond issue to be paid for by inside city limits property owners.

Nevertheless, the first reaction,
typical of Carmel, appears to be for the preservation of the garden.

The Editor of The Pine Cone:

I wish to express my protest against the plans of the Carmel Library Board (which consists of only five members) to place their new building Annex to the Library on the grounds of the present beautiful Memorial Library building on Ocean Avenue, and thereby destroy the garden and magnificent Monterey pine trees.

Your comprehensive coverage
Thursday, May 11, of this controversial issue should have alerted all of the town people of Carmel.

I hope every citizen of Carmel will communicate with the Pine Cone office by phone—MAYfair 4-3882, or by writing a letter to the Carmel Pine Cone, P. O. Box
G-1 or deliver a letter in person
for the next issue of the Pine Cone, May 25.

I am grateful there is such a medium as our Carmel paper for reaching the lovers of beauty, especially this small last "green belt" on Ocean Avenue.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Florence Sharon Brown

Among persons who have telephoned concerning the possible destruction of the garden at the Harrison Memorial Library is Dr. R.
A. Kocher who stated, "I have just returned from a trip through Northern California and Oregon.
Nowhere did I see any library with as fine a garden as Carmel library's. I do not want to see this beauty spot disappear."

Mr. Larry Cunningham stopped in the Pine Cone office to protest
for himself and his wife, Mary.
"We think the library garden is the one bright spot on Ocean Avenue," he declared.

Mrs. D. L. James and Mrs. David O'Neil add their protests. They

Kraft Will Talk But Won't Say Anything According To Pat

reds of articles and items which have appeared in almost every general-interest magazine on the contemporary scene, are what might be called a "team" of writers, although the teamwork is not always performed in the same way for every job.

Sometimes they collaborate, sometimes they merely act as mutual critics, and sometimes they are ghosts for each other. "You can't always tell by the by-line which of us has done the writing," Pat said, returning to the fireside after she had finished her pages.

The Birds and Beasts grew out of an editor's request for more material on animals after Mr. Kraft's reminiscence about a beloved Doberman had been carried by The New Yorker. A previous book by Ken, not about animals, was Land of Milk and Omelets.

"Ken won't dream stuff up," Pat reported. "It has to have happened." This might sound limiting to some authors but certainly not to the Krafts. On the contrary, their trouble is a plethora of material so true, but so unlikely-sounding they have to keep pruning it back in order not to annoy skeptical editors.

A case in point was the time Pat dashed off the story, just as it had happened on one hectic morning on their Mission farm when the power failed, Ken set off for town to see about it and the power chose that same time to have its first calf. Then when things seemed finally to be settling to a lull, a tornado ripped through the area, peeling a corrugated roof from a building near the open kitchen window and startling into action a skunk which had been lurking there.

A doubtful editor interested in the piece sent back a suggestion to "kill out the skunk and put in something about how many jars of fruit Mrs. Kraft puts up." Pat and Ken were stunned, but they had learned not to push editors too far.

With what we now recognized beyond doubt as great integrity—no one could possibly make stuff like that up—Ken answered with a minimum of hedging the customary questions. How did you happen to become a writer? Where and how do you work? What have you done besides write books and articles? What are you working on? What do you do with spare time?

"When I was still several inches shorter than the edge of my mother's kitchen sink, I wrote a poem and submitted it to her. Her eyes widened, she jerked her hands out of the dishwasher, snatched it up and ran to my father with it."

"From then on whatever I wrote, my parents thought it was great. My father used to take my compositions, letters from camp, things like that, down to his office to the secretaries and the poor wretches would have to type copies of them for him to distribute to his friends. I've been writing ever since."

"I work seated in a comfortable arm chair on the patio with a dog at my feet and my typewriter on my knees, and wearing a Chinese mandarin hat with a tassel and an African bush jacket with roomy pockets to hold my pipe and a spare bone for the dog."

"Besides the kind of writing I do now, I've worked for newspapers and in what is known as 'industrial journalism' putting out house organs and newsletters for organizations. I've also been a gag writer for cartoonists and in the Navy I wrote an amazing lot of copy about the Link trainer."

"When I was fairly new on the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, I was sent to interview James J. Davis, who had been secretary of labor under three presidents—Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, but the fact was at the time I'd never heard of him so I had no idea what to ask him."

"I stalled for a while, asking him how he liked St. Louis and the weather and so on until I tried his patience and he roared at me. 'If I were a young reporter, I would ask James J. Davis something like this . . . ' Then he rattled off a list of questions about labor and government policies, followed in sequence by his own answers. I took it all down and turned in a wonderful interview."

"I'm working now on two books, one about my father and another we may call Eater's Digest. We both got interested in cooking a long time ago when we read a book by a man named Schlink called Eat, Drink and Be Wary. From it we got the idea we were slowly poisoning ourselves with commercial food and started doing our own baking."

Pat said, Ken never lost interest in cooking. When she was working on the day side of the St. Louis paper and Ken was on the evening shift, he was supposed to spend his mornings working at his own writing. Instead he spent the time baking bread.

"He still does. It's not so much the baking Ken enjoys as the pounding he gives the dough. He can pretend it's an editor, agent, publisher, reviewer, or anyone else he's riled at and no harm done."

(The afternoon of his interview, Mr. Kraft served his own excellent version of sourdough bread, recently out of the oven, to everyone who happened to be around, including Pat, Hi-Jack and some birds hovering possessively over a feeding station in the garden.)

The question of spare time the Krafts dealt with separately. "We don't do anything in our spare time," Ken said. "We don't have any."

"Sometimes we go on trips in our spare time," Pat said and added that since they have lived in Pebble Beach barely a couple of years and aren't thoroughly familiar with the West Coast, they go sightseeing.

"You may call it spare time and sightseeing," said Ken. "To me it's just part of my work. If you're a writer, wherever you go, even if you call it a pleasure trip, still you are Gathering Impressions."

The Birds and Beasts has been read and reviewed across the country with enthusiasm. The Krafts are still puzzling, though, about a New England reviewer's comment that Mr. Kraft, in quitting his other writing jobs in favor of free lancing, "forsook the tranquility of the newsroom for the stark realism of home life."

Pat is not sure she is pleased with those words. However, on thinking it over, we see them as a subtle compliment not rated by most of us whose home life is run-of-the-mill.

In fact, after reading the book, which features an alligator living in the cellar, a dog who stole cushions, wax grapes and other portable items from around the neighborhood, an African lion dog who lived for a time with the Krafts and all but ate visitors up, not to mention the tale of the tornado and skunk, we believe we see what he meant.

The reviewer was referring, albeit clumsily, to that magic element which makes the Krafts a couple of very singular and likeable people and the Kraft home not so much a castle as a big stage all set for anything, simply anything, to happen.

WHAT'S DOING

D. D. Muir, your Telephone Manager in Carmel

A "rock factory" in which man, not Mother Nature runs things, has recently gone into operation. It belongs to Western Electric, the manufacturing branch of the Bell System, and the rocks produced are quartz crystals.

Thin slices of quartz crystal are used in several types of telephone equipment. While there's lots of natural quartz in the world, big crystals that can be sliced are scarce and expensive.

To get around this, Western Electric is using a unique process to "grow" large crystals from small, inexpensive pieces of quartz. The man-made crystals (above) cost a lot less than large, natural ones. And because they are more evenly shaped, twice as many usable slices can be cut from them.

"I'd like the number for—" these are words Carol Picone hears all day long. She's an Information Operator.

A big share of the requests are for numbers of new phones. So Carol has to keep up-to-date on the latest changes.

Each morning, Carol and our other Information Operators get a complete list of all the new phone numbers.

In this way, "Information" is able to give you the number of a new phone installed as recently as the afternoon of the previous day.

With vacation time nearly here, most folks are busy deciding where to go this year. Almost anywhere you head, you're apt to meet lots of other vacationers, and good accommodations may be scarce.

There's an easy remedy, though: just call ahead for reservations. It takes only a few minutes and can save you lots of time hunting for a vacancy.

Music On The Peninsula

BY MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER

The Monterey County Symphony Orchestra delivered a highly distinguished program and performance as its finale of the regular season's concerts which was received with enthusiasm by a full house at Sunset Auditorium Tuesday evening. Significant music history was made with performance of Mozart's strongly stirring choral and orchestral work, Vesperae Solennes de Confessore, on words from the Psalms and St. Luke, that rarely, if ever, has been performed in America or anywhere. It proved to be an heroic pronouncement by the Hartnell Community Chorus, director, Vahe Aslanian, who is a clever discoverer of little known works, this being the second the Chorus has given with the orchestra.

Norma Jean Scott, soprano, Carol Bruhn, alto, Larry Swanson, tenor and John Farr, local vocalist, bass, delivered a well balanced quartet and solos. The whole volume of tone and spirit attack with the supporting orchestra was vital with the beauty of Mozart's melodic writing, not only on Tuesday but in Salinas on Monday, though the Carmel performance reached a superlative height in both voice and instruments under Conductor Ronald Ondrejka's sure and authoritative guidance.

Opening with the Haydn Symphony in E flat major—the Drum Roll—a brilliant rendering of its reiterated melodic and catchy themes and masterly Haydn orchestration reflected the careful analytical preparation work our resident conductor is able to do. But it was in the Prokofiev Romeo and Juliet Ballet excerpts that both conductor and the orchestra most distinguished themselves. A difficult score that tests every resource came off with the most sensitive and varied playing that even a major orchestra could not have surpassed. Strings and woodwinds, et al, in clear phrasings produced the romantic emotions so dramatically drawn forth by Ondrejka. His direction of this composition caused a spontaneous burst of applause that recalled everyone concerned, as also did the Rossini Overture to the Barber of Seville. The musicians joined in the demonstration accorded Ondrejka whose first year as our resident conductor has built up the orchestra to its present accomplishment, and we hope he will remain with us a long time.

During arrangement of the stage for the chorus, Eugene Harrah, president of the Symphony Association, addressed the audience, in which he spoke of the Pop Concert to be given by the orchestra in the Forest Theater on June 4, at 3:00 o'clock, every seat to contribute funds to help an outstanding local music student. It is a good idea that originated with the announcer and should have the community's full support. A rehearsal will be held on Saturday, June 3.

Musica Viva's sixth concert last Sunday at the Steinbeck falling on Mother's Day probably caused the reduced attendance but those who stayed away missed an artistic and satisfactory performance by Baruch Klein, cellist, and Robert Sheldon, pianist, both musicians of fine attainment. Seldom is found so complete a balance as these men achieved together in the sonatas of Handel and Brahms. Shorter pieces by Saint-Saens, Kriesler, Faure, Grandos, Ravel and Rimsky-Korsakoff all demanded sensitive tonal treatment, which, in the pianist made one think of the history of Franz Liszt's pianissimos. In the Saint-Saens Swan, the flowing water rhythm, and the buzzing of Korsakoff's Bumble Bee were excellently portrayed by both musicians. An appreciative audience recalled them. Next Sunday Patricia Michaelian, an eleven year old pianist, accompanied by her father, a violinist, will give a recital. This should draw a large audience including many children.

Theatre Arts Brings 11-Year-Old To Play Sunday For Children

The Institute of Theatre Arts will present a special children's concert Sunday afternoon, 2:30 o'clock, in the Steinbeck Theatre. All students and children will be admitted at half the regular price of admission.

Pianist Patricia Michaelian, 11 years old, will play a program of Bach, Beethoven, Schumann, Chopin, Debussy and Mozart selections. At the end of the program Patricia will accompany her father in a sonata for violin and piano by Mozart.

Patricia has won the San Francisco Symphony youth award and has performed with the symphony. She is a student of Egon Petri.

The Institute is bringing Patricia here for their youth concert with the idea that children will be particularly interested in attending a concert by a child musician.

Citizens Protest Destruction Of Library Garden

telephoned the Pine Cone to say, "We are outraged at the thought of losing the garden. . . . Its destruction would be a desecration of the most beautiful corner in Carmel." Both Mrs. James and Mrs. O'Neil have been residents of this area for many years.

Miss Hallie Samson expressed her feelings about the possible disappearance of any portion of the library garden as follows: "Anything possible should be done rather than destroy any part of the garden or the trees. If a start is made in eliminating the garden, all of it will eventually disappear. Why wait to buy additional land to expand the library? If there is a wait, later it will be necessary to pay a lot more for any property. It is not sound to wait!"

Miss Samson added that she thought persons living outside the city limits should help carry the tax burden of maintaining the library.

Honorable Members
Carmel Library Board:

I read in the Carmel Pine Cone that the Library Board is considering expanding the library and taking away a portion of the front garden. Two of the most beautiful pine trees are there and one would definitely be sacrificed and possibly both. This beautiful garden is in the very center of Carmel where the greatest number of people have the privilege of seeing and enjoying it and to take away any portion of it would be a calamity and a sacrifice that Carmel should not be asked to take.

I would suggest that the Board seriously consider purchasing property on Lincoln Street, just north of the Girl Scout House, and putting up a building there for just the juveniles. The library was left two lots on San Antonio Street by Mrs. Adney and these could be sold and the money used to acquire property on Lincoln Street. This would be an ideal location and the juveniles would have a place of their own.

Sincerely,
A. C. Lafrenz

office, received considerably commission discussion yesterday afternoon.

Commissioners objected to one of the signs incorporating wooden cravats hanging from a tie rack in its design. They wanted this sign moved inside the court, not placed at the entrance as Mr. Cole desired.

Mr. Cole protested this was a hardship. He had taken a survey of visitors to the court and heard, several times, the question, "What are cravats?" He opined Carmel shoppers did not know that cravats meant ties and wanted the wooden identification of his merchandise to be prominently displayed.

"They must have been tourists," remarked Commissioner Florence Josselyn, "Carmelites know what cravats are." She cited the tremendous use of the local library as proof that Carmel residents could not be ignorant of the meaning of the word cravat.

The discussion ended with Mr. Cole agreeing to conform with commissioners' demands for his sign placement.

Letters...

Carmel, California
May 15, 1961

Dear Wilma:

It is not only because the superintendent of schools is my boss, but also in the sacred interest of accuracy that I should like to clear up a point or two that appeared in last week's article on the Council-Library Board joint meeting.

It is quite true that the library trustees were unable to persuade the school authorities to take any responsibility for student pressure on the library facilities. Suggestions for school financing of additional personnel to attend to student study hours at the library brought "no spark of interest." (Isn't it odd how the mention of money to be paid out puts a blight on the conversation?) So, from our very limited budget, we have been under-paying a public-spirited, trained librarian to assume this task on a part-time basis. All of us should be very grateful to Mr. Spinks for his devoted service to the youth of our community.

However, it is not correct, and I did not say, that the school superintendent has shown "no spark of interest in making school property available." Recently, Mr. Mitchell has spoken to me and to other members of the council and library board of the possibility of letting the library use some of the space that may be available at Sunset School after the junior high is opened at the valley site in 1962. This generous offer, of course, depends on the demands that may be put upon the property at that time by the school system. In the end, it may come to nothing as far as we are concerned, and our need for space is immediate.

To return to the article, in paragraph five it sounds as though library cards were mandatory for all students and that they were issued automatically. It may seem to be begging the question when I say that the students must apply for them personally, but it makes a difference, and we might be severely shocked and alarmed if we were made aware how many students do not even apply for cards.

Despite these points on which I felt explanation was necessary, the article certainly covered the sense of the meeting. In any case, all Carmel knows now that our kids are reading more than ever before, that the library is serving the "readingest" town for its size in the United States, and that some way must be found so that it may continue its vital work.

President, Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees.

Wilder & Jones	2	3
Turner & McEldowney	0	4

Although edged, 1 to 0, by Newt Goodrich's Boys' Town crew, the San Carlos Realty nine still maintained the top position in the tight Carmel Little League chase. The realtors slowed down the surging Pilot Market gang in Monday night's play by hanging on for a narrow 4-3 win over the grocers. Boys' Town, fresh from the coveted win over San Carlos, met a fired-up Wilder & Jones squad Tuesday evening and dropped a 5-2 decision to the plumbers.

Pilot Market kept within hailing distance of the leaders as it nosed out Clayton Neill's Sport Shop, 2 to 1, in one of the best games of the season. Ronnie Parsons notched the win for the grocers as he threw a steady three-hitter at the Sports. Lou Shone also pitched a fine game for Sport Shop and his performance was good enough to win most Little League games. The grocers got the winning run in the fourth inning as Rob Farrell walked and moved to third on a pair of passed balls to set up the score on Bob Samble's grounder to the shortstop.

Turner & McEldowney and Wilder & Jones put on a real slugfest to see which team would escape the cellar position. The plumbers outlasted the T&M crew, 12 to 11, and moved up in the league race. While Turner & McEldowney manufactured 11 runs over the six-inning route they failed to get a hit off W&J pitchers Joe Pistulka and Brad Jones. Hart Silverie stroked a pair of doubles to lead the winners in the hitting department.

The Boys' Town-San Carlos fracas was a ding-dong battle all the way with Jerry Olson pitching the 1-0 win for the clothiers. Olson threw a two-hitter at the realtors but his pitching opponent, Steve King, was nearly as effective as he gave up one run on five hits. David Eagle, Boys' Town second baseman, scored the winning run as he led off the game with a single and moved around to score on a passed ball and a neat sacrifice bunt by Eric Danysh.

Larry Little notched his second win of the campaign at the expense of Pilot Market in Monday night's crucial tilt. The little righthander scattered five hits among the grocers with Terry Mosolf solving Little's slants for a double and a single. Rob Farrell gave up three hits in the losing cause, one of the three being Jim Sparolini's booming homer which won the game.

The Wilder & Jones gang made the most of its two hits as it downed the high-flying Boys' Town aggregation, 5 to 2. Ed Kawanakoa pitched the win for the plumbers, giving up seven hits while striking out six and issuing no free passes. John Jacoby and Eric Danysh teamed up to hold the winners to a pair of hits but gave up six free trips to first. The plumbers broke the game open in the second heat when they tallied three times on a pair of walks, an infield miscue, and Joe Pistulka's double. The clothiers got on the board in the fourth inning when Richard Oleson got a life on an error, Gary Newton singled, and Eric Danysh drove them in with a single.

Tonight's Little League action matches Boys' Town and Pilot Market in a battle for second place. Friday evening, Sport Shop goes against Wilder & Jones and Monday's fare has league-leading San Carlos crossing bats with Turner & McEldowney.

PADRES SPLIT PAIR WITH KING CITY MUSTANGS

In this week's CCAL B-division baseball play, the Carmel High varsity dropped a close 6-5 decision to the King City nine while the Carmel junior-varsity clipped the Mustang jayvees, 11 to 3. The Padre varsity entertains Pacific Grove in another league game at 4:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Carmel's varsity took an early three-run lead over the Mustangs in Tuesday's clash at King City but was overhauled by a four-run surge in the fifth inning. With King City on top, 5 to 3, going into the sixth frame, the Padres parlayed hits by Bud Cunningham, Bob Little, and Evan Peskin with two passed balls by the King City catcher to knot the count at 5-5. However, the hosts took advantage of some sloppy Padre fielding to tally the winning marker in the bottom of the seventh.

Chris Williams pitched the first three innings for Carmel and was breezing along with a two-hitter until losing control in the fourth heat and had to be relieved by Jim Kelley. Kelley gave up only two hits in the three innings he worked but receipted for the loss as the Mustangs got to him for the winning run in the seventh.

Bob Little hit a double and single in three official trips to the plate to pace the Carmel hitters. The Padres outfit the winners eight to four but the KC lads made good use of their four blows. Mike Taylor and Rance Kastor chipped in with solid doubles to spark the Padre plate power and Taylor turned in the top fielding play as he hurled in a windblown fly ball and threw out a Mustang runner trying to advance after the catch.

The Padre junior-varsity was trailing the Pony nine, 2 to 0, going into the fifth frame when it exploded for 10 runs to put the game out of reach. With Steve Johnson pitching solid ball all the way, the Little Padres turned in their best game of the current season. Johnson scattered three hits in notching his fourth win of the season and was especially effective in the tight spots. Tim Mosolf led the Carmel bat-wielders with a double and single in three times at bat.

DEREK RAYNE LEADS FARM TEAM LEAGUE

John Harrison's Derek Rayne club has taken the lead in the Farm Team League after two Saturdays' explosive play. The Rayne gang edged Ewell Cole's Nikko's crew, 8 to 7, and blasted to a 15-10 win over Paul Artellan's American Legion nine. Lee McGuckin's Village Inn gang downed the Little (Continued on Page Six)

Sparrows, 14 to 10, but the Sparrows came back last Saturday to power to a 31-5 win over the Rockets. The Carmel Plaza whipped the American Legion, 22 to 15, to earn a tie for second place.

Jim Davies scored 5 runs to lead Carmel Plaza to the 22-15 win over the American Legion with Robert Adams and Doug Swanson stroking three hits in four trips to the plate. Scott Crampton scored three runs to pace the Legion offense.

Hugh Steele hit a pair of doubles and scored three runs to lead Derek Rayne to its win over Nikko's. Steve Felder and Art Smyth scored five runs between them to spark the losers.

John Dudley pitched and batted the Village Inn to a convincing win over the Little Sparrows. Rudy LaMar hit four doubles in five chances to drive in six runs for the winners. John Jensen, Alex Kaneveski, and Brad Grey were the big sticks for the Little Sparrows.

Mike Castro, Mark Spindler, and Richie Shelton sparked the Derek Rayne squad to a 15-10 win over the hard-trying American Legion gang. In this one, the Legion rallied for six runs in the last inning but couldn't quite overhaul the winners. Mark Goodrich and Kurt Roberts were the top scorers for the losers.

Farm League play continues at the Little League Park this Saturday and there is plenty of action from early in the morning to late in the afternoon.

Renee Myette will leave tomorrow to fly the polar route to Europe to become the bride of Sergeant Lyn Bronson on May 27 in Dusseldorf, Germany. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Whelchel, will accompany her. In Dusseldorf they will meet Lyn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norton Bronson of Greenwich, Connecticut, who also are going to Germany for the wedding.

Renee's baggage will contain her white chiffon over peau de soie wedding dress. The fitted bodice of the gown has cap sleeves and a square neckline. Soft chiffon draping extends from above the waistline across the front of the dress to fall in back in a floating panel to the short hemline of the very full skirt.

Also packed is her tulle illusion veil which will fall from a flat chiffon bow over her face and to the hemline of her dress in back. She plans to carry a bouquet of Alpine flowers. Following their marriage, Renee and Lyn will spend the first part of their honeymoon in a castle outside Dusseldorf then take a boat trip down the Rhine. They will live in Dusseldorf for the next two years until Lyn has completed his Army duty.

They met here when Lyn was a student at the Army Language School and have been engaged for a year and a half. For a year of this time they have not seen one another as Lyn has been stationed abroad. However, Renee spent two months last year visiting her fiancé's parents in Connecticut and met his sisters, Anne and Joan, and his brother, Chris.

On their way to Germany, Renee and her parents will spend two days in London, fly to Amsterdam for several days, then take the train to Dusseldorf. Mr. and Mrs. Whelchel plan to remain in Europe for a month or so following the wedding. Renee is a graduate of Sunset School and Carmel High School. She continued her education at Monterey Peninsula College and the University of Arizona. Recently she has been helping her aunt, Mrs. Roxie Jensen, in the restaurant owned by her grandmother, Mrs. Bessie Clayton. Renee has a stepbrother, George Myette, who is living in Malibu.

Mrs. Stowell Town House Speaker
Mrs. Royal Stowell of Carmel, wife of the artist who has a one-man exhibit of his portraits at the Carmel Foundation Town House this month, will speak on Wednesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock at the Town House program.

She will recount some of the most amusing and interesting incidents which she and her painter husband experienced on their travels, including anecdotes about the important personages, stage personalities, and socialites of whom Mr. Stowell made portrait studies.

All interested persons are invited to the meeting and to the tea to follow. Mr. Stowell will also be present to answer questions about his many paintings.

FROM A
LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

Leonard Wibberly was born in Ireland and now lives with his family in Southern California. His new book is entitled Stranger at Killnock, and it is a story of such beauty that it has made a Wibberly fan of this librarian. It is a tale of the Irish fisherfolk on the Galway coast, of their superstitions so firmly interlaced with their religious beliefs, and of their devious mental processes by which they can mask a thought with such a rush of words that the hearer is forever lost.

In the village of Killnock all were Roman Catholic except Dr. McElwan who was a determined Protestant. The superstitions of the village seemed to center on the sacrificial stone at the top of the nearby mountain. Sometimes a small sacrifice could be found on the stone, and never did a villager climb the mountain without first arming himself with a bit of sally grass, a sprig of heather, and a small round stone for his pocket. Young Father Dimmock was a modern priest and impatient. Like Saint Patrick of old he was determined to destroy the stone and thus strike a blow at centuries of superstitious fears.

There were others in the village with hard problems. There was Caitlin of the Other House who had never married, yet even in her sixties she had an emptiness of the heart because of her childlessness. There was Tom Joyce the Fisherman who could never forget that years before on a sad day he had killed a young boy by pushing him from the boat during a storm at sea. And there was Rincey the Cobbler who was raising his motherless daughter Mairin, and who feared that he might die and leave her alone in the world. And then one day a stranger walked quietly into Killnock and because there was no room at the inn, he came to live in the home of Rincey the Cobbler.

After he had lived there a short while the knowledge of him began to be spread about and lovely things began to happen. Feeny the Bartender was healed of his deafness, and small Mairin was rescued from drowning, becoming from that time a great friend of the stranger. To her he showed many strange and beautiful things and places, and she knew without being told that her father had died, but she did not weep because the stranger told her not to do so. And many another thing happened at Killnock, and the reader of the book will find these things out for himself.

But let not the reader dash through this book in an evening; rather let him take time to read it softly and slowly, savoring it as he goes, so that the people will be real to him and the atmosphere surround him. Only then can he accept the stranger and what happened after he came that day to Killnock.

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-SEA DOES ORDAIN as follows:

Section 1. That Section 1210 (a) of the Municipal Code be, and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(a) The maximum width of any driveway shall be not more than fourteen (14') feet as measured at the top of the curbing, or if there be no curbing, such maximum width shall be measured eight (8') feet from the property line abutting the street in the event the city street is fifty (50') feet in width, and ten (10') feet from the property line abutting the street in the event the city street is wider than fifty (50') feet without special permission for variance thereof granted by the City Council upon written application."

Section 2. That Section 1210(g) be, and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(g) No driveway shall be constructed upon the sidewalk area, park strip, or street, except in compliance with a permit issued by the Street Department. Such permit shall state the grade level at which the driveway shall cross over an existing, or future curb or sidewalk. Where no curb and/or sidewalk is presently in existence at such grade, the Street Department Permit may allow the driveway surfacing to start at the edge of the present street surfacing and follow the existing contours of the ground in the Public Right-of-Way, or may permit only such cut or fill as may be necessary for the property owner to gain access to his property, without, however, exceeding a gradient of twenty per cent. together with adequate space for ingress and egress therefrom. The elevation of said garage floor shall be so located with relation to the set-back of said garage from the property line, and a grade level established by the Superintendent of Streets at the property line so that the grade between the property line and the garage floor will not exceed twenty per cent (20%) between said points. The grade level at the property line hereinabove referred to shall be established by the Superintendent of Streets to conform either with existing curbs and improved sidewalks, if any, or probable future street or sidewalk improvements, in the event no curb or sidewalk adjacent to said property is presently improved, it being the intent of this section to eliminate, so far as possible, the possibility of garages becoming unusable due to the maintenance of or the improvement of streets, sidewalks or gutters."

Section 4. Effective Date. This ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its final passage and adoption.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

Unchanging beauty is a theme of the Lesson-Sermon. "Soul and Body" to be read at all Christian Science churches Sunday.

Included in the Bible selections will be these verses from Psalm 90: "Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto their children. And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us: and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it."

One of the correlative passages to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states (pp. 247, 248): "The recipe for beauty is to have less illusion and more Soul, to retreat from the belief of pain or pleasure in the body into the unchanging calm and glorious freedom of spiritual harmony."

Anne Bosworth Lands Sailfish

Miss Anne Bosworth is vacationing in Florida at Riviera Beach. She was in Grand Bahamas on the day Astronaut Alan Shepard landed there after his space flight. She also has become "the fishingest girl we know," according to Mrs. William Miller. Miss Bosworth caught, boated and released alive, for conservation credits, a five foot, eight inch sailfish on May 10. This was the second sailfish she has caught and also has marlin and light tackle fishing credits. She will be back in Carmel later this month.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Luther Forster turn to leave the Church of the Wayfarer following their marriage on Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Forster is the former Suzann Pilot. Baskets of pink gladioli and white chrysanthemums decorated the altar for the double ring ceremony performed by Dr. K. Fillmore Gray at 3:00 o'clock. Wedding music was played by the church organist, Connell Carruth.

Suzann was given in marriage by her father, Walt Pilot. She wore a white wool suit and peau de sole bow hat with a face veil, matching shoes, and carried her Order of Rainbow Girls Bible garlanded with white gardenias and stephanotis.

Her younger sister, Cindy, was her attendant dressed in a sheer pink short-sleeved frock with a full skirt, and a wristlet of pink baby roses.

The bridegroom's brother, Don Forster of Bakersfield, was best man. Ushers were two childhood friends of the bride, David Tobiasen and Michael Elsen, the latter home on leave from military service in Germany.

Mrs. Pilot attended her daughter's marriage in an aqua raw silk sheath dress, matching hat and shoes and a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Carl M. Forster of Santa Paula, the bridegroom's mother, was attired in a royal blue silk shantung sheath dress, white hat and accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Pink and white snapdragons, stock and roses arranged with greenery in the home of the bride's parents carried out the pink and white color theme of the wedding for the reception following the ceremony. Orange blossoms, brought from Southern California by the bridegroom's parents, surrounded the three-tiered wedding cake on the bride's table on which stood, also, a basket of pink roses.

Following a two-week honeymoon in Northern California, Oregon and Washington, the young couple will live at Big Sur where the bridegroom is a ranger with the State Division of Beaches and Parks.

Family members at the wedding, in addition to those already mentioned, were Suzann's younger brother, Walt Pilot Jr.; her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McCaman of Seaside; her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. LeEarl McCaman of Marina and their children, Jonathan and Escaime; the bridegroom's father; his aunts, Mrs. E. W. Garrison of Oxnard and Mrs. H. H. Boulware of Paso Robles; his cousin, Barbara Boulware of Morro Bay; and his sister-in-law and niece, Mrs. Donald Forster and her daughter, Diane Louise, from Bakersfield.

Suzann is a graduate of Sunset School and Carmel High School and attended Monterey Peninsula College for two years. At the end of her junior high school year she represented Carmel High School in Turkey as an American Field Service summer exchange student. She is a Past Worthy Advisor and was with Counter Intelligence, Military Government and Civil Censorship on Okinawa, in the Philippines and Japan. He received his Ph.D. degree from Harvard in 1948. During this same year he was awarded an Area Research Post-Doctoral Fellowship of the Social Science Research Council. Dr. Scalapino is the author of numerous writings widely published in journals of Political Science and History. He has addressed the Council several times in the past. His most recent lecture was last April when he spoke on American Foreign Policy in South Asia.

Attend Rhododendron Conference

Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Kocher arrived home Monday evening from a week's vacation during which they attended the International Rhododendron Conference in Portland, Oregon. Dr. Kocher, a rhododendron fancier, reports that hybridizers and experts on the growth of this shrub came to the four-day Portland meetings from Scotland, England, Holland, New Zealand and many other parts of the world. They brought with them colored slides of unbelievably beautiful rhododendron stands, he adds.

Outside Portland, the Kochers visited the test gardens of the American Rhododendron Society, and went on excursions of gardens in Portland, too.

"Seeing so many gorgeous blooms made me want to get right to work in my own garden," Dr. Kocher declares. He already has rhododendrons from many lands growing in his several-acre garden at Carmel Highlands, and a display of these blooms second to none on the Peninsula.

Republican Women's Patio Tea

Mrs. Ralph Hammonds' home on the Pebble Beach golf course will be the setting for a Patio Tea to be given by the Carmel Republican Women's Club, on May 26 at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Mrs. E. J. Murray, president, will preside at the short business meeting. Caspar Weinberger, vice president of the Republican State Central Committee and former State Assemblyman, will speak on Program for Victory. Another special guest will be Mrs. Warren Sandstrom, vice president of the California Federation of Republican Women, Northern Area. Tea will be served after the meeting with Mrs. Rody Holt and Mrs. Mark Thomas pouring. Mrs. William Eklund is in charge of decorations. Mrs. Della C. Williams is chairman of the hostess committee. Those assisting her are Miss Margaret Prosser, Mrs. Hal dane Fisher, Mrs. Kenneth Macpherson and Mrs. Carl Menneken. Members of the board will be present to meet the guests, and all Republican women are invited to the affair.

Past Grand Executive Committee Officer, Order of Rainbow Girls

Her husband received his elementary and high school education in Santa Paula schools before studying for two years at Ventura Junior College. He and Suzann met last summer when the latter was employed at Big Sur as a lifeguard at Pfeiffer State Park pool.

WAC Meeting Tomorrow Night

Dr. Robert A. Scalapino, professor of political science at the University of California, will address the World Affairs Council of the Monterey Peninsula tomorrow evening at 8:00 o'clock in the Carmel High School auditorium. His address, which concludes the 1960-61 study group series, Tension Spots and Situations, will be a summary and commentary of the subjects discussed during the year. The talk will be given with the co-sponsorship of the Carmel Adult School and is open to the public without charge.

Dr. Scalapino has been a professor at the University of California at Berkeley since 1949. Prior to that he was an instructor in Far Eastern Government and Politics at Harvard University. During the years 1944-1946 he saw service as a Japanese Language officer in the Far Eastern Theater and also

My Experiences On Stage

Editor's Note: We have known J. William MacLennan as former dean of men and head of the history department at Santa Barbara State College, director of Santa Barbara Art School, president of the Santa Barbara Art Association and an expert on early California history, as our readers know from several excellent articles on the subject which he has written for the Pine Cone. Recently, he told us that ever since he read in the Pine Cone Edward Kuster's recollections of the theater and his association with it in Carmel, he has been struggling against the impulse to write the history of his experiences with the amateur stage, and its early manifestations in Santa Barbara. Here it is, the account of still another interest of a man of many interests and talents. The first installment of Mr. MacLennan's amateur theatrical experiences was published in a recent Pine Cone.

BY J. WILLIAM MACLENNAN

PART II.

King Solomon came to be known as the Navel Parade, as the flimsy Turkish trousers of girls dancing before the court had a tendency to slip down as they danced in abandonment to the beat of the drums and the shrill notes of the pipes.

Shortly after the success of King Solomon, it was decided to build a community theater, The Lobero. The Beggar on Horseback was selected as the opening production. It would cost about $10,000 to produce.

I figured that since the top attendance at any production in Santa Barbara up to that time was 2800, something had to be done to stimulate attendance if we were to pay expenses. I planned a fiesta lasting several days. Such a celebration, I believed, would attract many people to Santa Barbara and thus assure the financial success of the play; also it would stimulate an interest in the city's romantic past, with which I was well acquainted.

My plans were adopted, I helped organize the fiesta and had charge of its publicity. In addition, I served as chairman of the song competition committee, chairman of the street dancing committee, and of the reception in the Casa de la Guerra, attended by over a hundred descendants of the Spanish pioneers living in Santa Barbara, and many others. This first fiesta was an outstanding success and continues today to be one of Californians' important celebrations.

Meantime, I had charge also of publicity for the Beggar on Horseback. In that connection I arranged for a preliminary dinner at El Paseo of 40 descendants of the original settlers of Santa Barbara, boxes for them at the theater on opening night, and a group of musicians and dancers to provide entertainment at the entrance to the theater. In response, the three granddaughters of Don Jose de la Guerra, at one time commandante of the Presidio of Santa Barbara, graciously played and sang some of the beloved songs of early California, standing in the balcony of the theater, above the entrance, and assisted by the Overman Sisters, who were well versed in those songs and who directed most of the musical programs during the first fiesta.

It was natural that sooner or later I should be drawn to the stage itself, and I was given roles in R.U.R., Calling All Wires, Wings Over Europe, The Late Christopher Bean. In the latter play, I was Davenport, the art critic who foiled the attempt of a sharper to secure for a meager sum valuable paintings which belonged to a widow and her daughter. After the final performance, at a party for the cast, Mr. T., who took the part of the sharper, and who had a second-hand shop in Santa Barbara, called, Noah's Ark, came to me and said, "Mr. MacLennan, I know you understand art. I don't . . . I can buy any number of oil paintings in Los Angeles for $1.50. If you will come there with me and help me pick out the best, I'll give you 50 per cent on all of them you sell to your friends."

Later, I was asked to take the lead in still another play—I have forgotten the name of it. I was not feeling well at the time and declined. Paul Whitney, the director, then said, "I'll wait three or four days, then if you still feel you can't take the part there's a young man working on the sets as Assistant Director. He said he'd take it if you couldn't. I learned his name was Tyrone Power Jr. The name seemed familiar. I recalled a famous Irish actor, Tyrone Power. The young man was his grandson. As was to be expected he gave an excellent performance, and later made a name for himself in Hollywood.

A group that often gathered in our studio in Montecito, decided one evening to write a play. Among them were Dan Grossbeck, whose Russian sketches became the basis of the scenery for the Movie Volga Boatman; Colin Campbell and Carl Oscar Borg, both famous painters; and Litti Paulding and Paul Whitney of the Santa Barbara News-Press.

The play was to be a melodrama, or mellow-drama, as we called it; the title, Head-Achers, and was to be produced by the Players Club, which I had organized and of which I was then president. As many as possible of the old familiar phrases were included in the play, such as: "A name that's never spoken", "A picture that's turned toward the wall",—"Once aboard the lugger and the gal is mine" was Grossbeck's insistent offering and had to be fitted in somewhere. The setting was The Old Homestead with a lighthouse in the distance. The first scene was by the pump in the barnyard; a happy family gathering of father, mother, daughter, and hired man as the comedy relief. The next scene brings news of the daughter (Mrs. MacLennan was cast for this roll) who had gone to the big city and of whom rumors of waywardness were reaching the peaceful home.

There was a blizzard, a wreck, and a rescue at the lighthouse. Of course the farmer's daughter and her child were saved, but when she came to the house and sought admittance, the irate father seized the child and threw it out into the snow storm, pushed out his daughter, and slammed the door. It all ended happily, as all "mellodrammers" should. The daughter rescued The Child, knocked incessantly at the door, while the mother, behind it, pleaded with the angry father; and when at last the daughter was admitted, the daughter showed her father the marriage license, which, of course, she always carried with her to prove she was a good girl. The play was produced, I believe, by small groups in Riverside and Pasadena.

For the second fiesta I served as manager, under the title of secretary, but the earthquake of 1925 limited the celebration to an entertainment in the High School Bowl, street dancing, and numerous garden parties. Because of illness while in Europe, later in the year, I resigned as manager, but continued to serve on the board of directors and later became Chairman of the Historical Committee out of which has grown the present Santa Barbara Historical Society.

Then I wrote a play. Plays with backgrounds of Spanish California were wanted by the Community Arts Association for production at The Lobero during fiesta week, and in 1929, the director asked me to write one because of my knowledge of that period. I had specialized, since coming to California in its history. 1818 was the result. It told the story of the coming to California of the Pirate Bouchard. The first act was set in the Mission garden during the services. The choir was singing, when the news reached there that Bouchard had captured, plundered, and burned the Presidio of Monterey.

The second act was on Santa Cruz Island where the pirates celebrated before coming to Santa Barbara. Since the crew was a motley one, composed of Mexicans, American, English and Scotch adventurers, Chinese, Malaysians, and Hawaiians (including 30 women, who undoubtedly knew how to do the hula, the affair was a riotous celebration.) The last act, in the Santa Barbara Presidio, with the home of Commandante de la Guerra in the background, depicted negotiations with Bouchard, who had decided, because exceptionally high seas lasting for days had made a safe landing of his arms impossible, to forego his attack on the fort. After Bouchard's departure with his fleet, the play ended with a fandango before the Commandant's home.

The two boxes in the theater, seating 40, were filled with descendants of the Spanish settlers. These joined the cast on the stage of the veranda of the house, applauding the others as they danced before them the jota, la contra danza, and la bamba; and sang, accompanying themselves with guitars and violins, the beloved songs: Cielito Lindo, Adios Amores, and Manyanitas, Manyanitas (Little mornings of delight).

My last participation in the histrionic field was in the pageant at Monterey in 1949, celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of the signing of the first constitution of the State of California. I had the role of the Chairman of the Delegates. It was in the last scene of the pageant. We delegates, like many others of the actors were actually live puppets, for no one, beside the delegates before me, heard my words as I addressed them, making the necessary gestures, congratulating them on the excellent work they had done, and asking them to come forward and sign the constitution. The voice that the audience heard giving my lines as I spoke and gestured came from a man seated in a booth at the rear, above the audience, and reached them by loud-speakers scattered throughout the grounds.

As the delegates filed up and as they signed that famous document the lights on our stage dimmed slowly, the flood-lights facing the audience came on; the audience poured down the aisles and out of the grounds; and thus ended my last histrionic endeavor. I found, however my experiences on the stage valuable to me as a lecturer; and also in broadcasting, for as I sat at the microphone I could visualize my audience and talk to them as though I were with them.
